FINANCIAL LITERACY EDUCATION

In accordance with the current Department of Defense (DoD) Financial Literacy Education Plan, DoD seeks to promote lifelong financial well-being by adopting the philosophy of financial literacy education and career-long retirement planning. In compliance with the plan, we in the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) civilian HR community strive to ensure consistency in human resource (HR) management programs and systems that shape and enhance the personal financial readiness of the DLA civilian workforce.

As such, DLA is pleased to announce the upcoming release of the DLA Financial and Retirement Planning Resource Brochure featuring eSeminars, an on-line financial literacy training tool available through the Employee Benefit Information System (EBIS). On-line training modules include: financial literacy, retirement, social security, TSP PLUS MORE...The training modules are designed to help all DLA employees at any stage of their career to plan for their individual financial future. The brochure also contains a wealth of other financial and retirement planning resources. We have also enhanced our DLA website to include the new DoD Financial Literacy link that contains additional information to assist our workforce.

Based on the present and future economic state, DLA employees are encouraged to become more financially self reliant in taking the proper measures to plan for their future. eSeminars training will empower the DLA workforce to make personal decisions related to their own financial future and better utilize the benefits and resources currently available to obtain greater financial security.

To view the Financial and Retirement Planning Resource Brochure for more information on eSeminars as well as other updates on the newest resources, visit the DoD Financial Literacy link on the DLA HR website, <http://www.hr.dla.mil/resources/benefits/dodfinlit.html>. You may also copy the link and paste to your internet browser for access to the HR website.

DON'T wait; begin your on-line financial literacy education experience today! It will pay off in the future.
